Flofuel Group announces acquisition of Fluid Transfer International

Witney, Oxfordshire, <date>: For immediate release

The Flofuel Group is pleased to announce the acquisition of Fluid Transfer International, a leading global company for providing aviation refuelling solutions. The Flofuel Group includes Flightline Support, Flofuel Training, Flofuel Support and now Fluid Transfer International, together a growing platform of companies and capabilities.

The Flofuel Group recognises the significant value of Fluid Transfer International and following the acquisition of Flightline Support in 2016, took this subsequent strategic move to extend its reach and potential in the global refuelling solutions market.

The Flofuel Group, led by respected Oil and Gas Executive and Managing Director George Maguire, is supported by SME Private Equity investor Rockpool Investments. All Flofuel Group companies will continue to run at their existing locations and the focus strongly remains on staff retention and customer satisfaction.

Steve Henning, Chairman of the Flofuel Group, said: “We are delighted to welcome Fluid Transfer International to our growing group and we would like to extend a warm welcome to their team. Together, with a wide geographical reach, extended capabilities and capacity we forecast significant growth across each group company and across the group as a whole.”

George Maguire, the new Chairman of Fluid Transfer International, said: “Being part of the Flofuel Group offers a number of key benefits to both our company and our team. Not only are we able to share capabilities and best practise, we are also now well positioned for even greater future success within this growing and ambitious group.”
